

Acquiring certification services

Achieve multi-brand terminal L3 certification.

Confirm the quality of new acceptance platforms before deployment in existing and new channels.

Preparing a terminal integration project can be complex and certification is a requirement. Stakeholders need to demonstrate the compliance of chip acceptance devices, and their integration within the acquirer architecture (ecosystem), in line with requirements outlined by the payment schemes. Fime is accredited by a wide range of international and regional payment schemes to offer comprehensive, tailored support that simplifies and streamlines deployments.

How it works.

- Ensure fast, simple project start-up, from completion and test-environment set-up.
- Offer certification expertise to quickly resolve test set-up and test case issues.
- Validate test results quickly until successful completion of your project.
- Liaise with certification authorities on technical issues and letter of certification / approval submission.

Fime can help you at any stage of your project lifecycle.
